Legislation for the Territories

At the late special session of Congress the House passed a bill regarding Territorial legislatures, which contained this provision:

And if in any case the reapportionment and redistricting of any Territory shall not be done by the Legislature thereof, it shall be the duty of the Governor of such Territory, to divide such Territory into pro tempore and representative districts, upon the basis of the census of A.D. 1870.

The bill went to the Senate and on June 21 it was reported by substitute for all but the enacting clause and so passed, and on the 25th the House concurred in the Senate's action. Following is the law passed:

"That the provisions of an act entitled 'An act making appropriations for the legislative, executive and judicial expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1879, and for other purposes,' approved June 19, 1878, pertaining to government in the several Territories of the United States, shall not be construed as to impair or shorten the tenure of office of any member of such Legislative Assemblies until the redistricting and reapportionment of such Territories, as is therein provided, nor until at the next regular election thereafter the twelve members of the Council and twenty-four members of the House of Representatives of such Territories shall have been elected and their term of office begun."

Amend the title in as to read "An act concerning the Legislative Assemblies of the several Territories of the United States."

Jeff Davis vs The Women of the South.

Weber's assertions of Mr. Davis that he has yet to see the first Southern woman reconstructed, true, we would be at a loss which the vice to deplore, the silliness of the women or the sense of folly of their world by partition. In the name of God, have not the Southern women, in the rearing of their children and the building of their broken homes, better employment than in perpetuating legacies of hate? With as illimitable a scorn as any possible for the policy and practices of the Republican party since, during and before the war, we are yet free to declare that it is infinitely injurious to the Southern people, as well as unutterably wicked, to fan the dying embers of sectional hatred. Let the dead bury the dead.

Solovoff's Confederate.

London, July 7th.—The person who supplied the pistol to Alexander Solovoff, with which he attempted to assassinate the Emperor of Russia on the 14th of April, is a physician from Wiesbaden, Germany, who is also proved to have prepared the poison with which Solovoff attempted suicide after his failure to kill the Czar, and to have owned the horse by means of which the assassins of General Menschikoff attempted to escape.

A telegram from St. Petersburg authoritatively states he has been sentenced to be hanged.

Dismantled Fortresses.

Vienna, July 7th.—The walls of the fortresses of Widin, Silistra, Rusechuk and Varna have been destroyed and the earthworks are left to the operation of the weather.
